ory since Colonial Days has resulted in the creation of "a vast pool of highly skilled people, in all categories of small arms research, development and manufacture. We have seen the contributions of these skills and technologies during our Nation's major conflicts, including two World Wars and the Korean War, and now in Viet Nam.

"Historically, our great strength has been our major source of protection. It has enabled us to remain a free nation.
"I cannot believe that our military posture—defensive or offensive—can rest solely on missile readiness. I believe that conventional weaponry must always receive major consideration in our defense effort, regardless of the state of missile technology. And for that reason it is important to the United States to retain, and even expand, our reservoirs of development and manufacturing skill."

Senator Hammond said, "From an economic point of view, more than 2500 jobs are at stake, and our losses in supplies and services, and allied employment will also be very great.

"Looking at the total picture," Senator Hammond said, "including direct job loss and the financial impact on the area, along with the cost of transporting people to Rock Island and perhaps the cost of direct aid to some of the affected employees, I wonder just how much economy the Department of Defense honestly expects to achieve.

"The wisdom and propriety of the closing of the Springfield Armory is certainly subject to question. Mayor Ryan of Springfield will have all the help that I can give in this important matter."

40 years.

Mr. Knapp stressed that the drive-in bank and parking area on Arnold Street will remain available to the bank's customers.

The open house from the 14th to the 30th will include gifts, souvenirs and door prizes, Mr. Knapp said.

One of the main features of the open house, which will run from December 14 to Thursday, December 30, will be a new account promotion. Persons who open a new account of $25 or more or who add $25 or more to an existing account will have their choice of one of five valuable gifts: a full-sized blanket, in a choice of colors; an electric trivet, which keeps foods piping hot; an indoor-outdoor thermometer, easy to read and easily mounted; a socket tool kit, containing all of the equipment for easily and efficiently handling all of the popular sizes of bolts, nuts and screws, and a five-piece Staco desk set.

Everyone visiting the new office of the Westfield Savings Bank also will be eligible to register for the five valuable door prizes that will be awarded.

The door prizes include a Zenith color television set, a $250 landscape planting from the Adams Nursery, Westfield, a Savage Arms deluxe 12-gauge pump shotgun, a Columbia's boy's bicycle and a Columbia girl's bicycle. Mr. Knapp said the drawing of the winners of the door prizes will take place on Monday, January 4.

Visitors to the bank will be given free souvenirs.

Mr. Knapp pointed out that the door prize entries and the souvenirs will be available only at the main office. However, as part of its celebration of the auspicious event, the West-Springfield Branch of Westfield Savings will feature the new account promotion from the 14th to the 30th.

The new Westfield Savings office has many outstanding features, all designed for the greater comfort and service to the customers of the bank. The building is fully air conditioned for summer comfort, and winter warmth is provided by a Westfield-made H. B. Smith Co. boiler. It has high intensity lighting throughout, and those visiting the bank will find the decor attractive and restful.

The large new lobby will contain eight savings teller's windows and five mortgage loan windows. All of the bank's operating personnel will be on the main floor, as will the offices of President Arthur W. Knapp and Treasurer Ralph Neth.

A large and attractive employees' lounge is included in the basement, and a new and larger safe deposit department — increasing the number of safe deposit boxes from 500 to 1000 — also is in the basement. A new vault, with a seven-ton door, is located in the basement.

Pictured above is the Railroad Salvage Company of Conn. new fireproof million dollar warehouse store in East Windsor, Conn. The 95,000 square foot facility is located on Route 5 across from the East Windsor Drive-In Theater. According to R. William Vine, the chain President, this site was selected because it provided easy access on Route 91 from both the Springfield and Hartford markets and a following from the Springfield market already displayed. The building is of modern design and its imposing exterior is faced with attractive split-stone and its front column decor features beautiful Tennessee crab orchard stone. A dramatic 270 ton canopy projects out 25 feet above the main entrance, made possible by the cantilevering of nine prestressed beams, each weighing 30 tons. The unusual terrazzo floor is made of marble and concrete, laid out in 20 foot pink and black squares.

The growth of this chain is a come-to-life Horatio Alger story. From a small, unimpressive store in New Haven to over 1/4 million square feet of floor space today, represents a giant step in the economic structure of management. Railroad Salvage's unique business involves buying all over the country. They purchase manufacturers' closeouts, over-production inventories, bankrupt stocks, insurance salvage merchandise, and transportation-damaged inventories. A fleet of seventy company-owned trailer vans augment commercial shipments of their tremendous inventories to Connecticut warehouses and finally to their retail stores. The management said that because of the company's buying sources, many name brands are always available below normal market values, fully backed with a "satisfied or money back policy."

New Record

The 15th report, but not the final report from the Department of Fish and Game in Vermont, shows a total of 14,337 BUCKS killed as of Dec. 4. Last year's 15th report showed a total of only 9960 bucks reported to the Department, and was issued Nov. 29th. Windsor County reported the largest number of kills with a total of 2688... Rutland County second with 2149... and Orange County third with 2013.

The bear kill is over the amount turned in last year. The total bagged so far is 321, with Addison County vying with Windsor County for the total bear taken. Both Counties giving up 38 bear each to lucky hunters.
